TO THE OLD AND YOUNG.

HO! YE RED HEADS AND GREY!

PHENOMENON IN CHEMISTRY.

EAST INDIA HAIR DYE.

Colors the Hair, and will not the Skin

THIS Dye is in form of a powder, which in plain matter of fact may be applied to the hair over night, the first night turning the lightest RED or GREY HAIR to a dark brown, and by repeating a second or third night to a bright jet black. Any person may, therefore, with the least possible trouble, keep his hair any dark shade or perfect black; with a positive assurance that the powder, if applied to the skin, will not color it. By an occasion al application, a person turning grey will never be known to have a grey hair. Directions complete with the article. There is no coloring in this statement, as one can easily test.

These facts are warranted by the gentleman who manufactures it, who is the celebrated Chemist, DR. COMSTOCK, author of Comstock's Chemistry, Philosophy, and other works, and School Books, well known and widely celebrated by the public.

DEAFNESS.

DR. McNAIR'S ACOUSTIC OIL.

THOSE DEAF FROM INFANCY often receive in a most miraculous manner their hearing when they least expect it by some trifling accident or event, which shows them how easily they might have much sooner had their hearing, and saved themselves and their friends the pain of conversing in a loud tone, without pleasure, or of being neglected and shunned to avoid that distress which is felt mutually by the deaf person and his hearers. How sacred a duty, therefore, it is that we use all necessary means to remove such an affliction, and enjoy the social qualities implanted in our nature? This EAR OIL has the effect so to relieve the tension, and bring into use the natural action of the parts, as to restore the hearing when lost or impaired For sale by G. W. LADD.

MISCELLANEOUS.

Don't be Discouraged.

BY T. S. ARTHUR.

There is a divinity that shapes our ends, rough hew as you will.

'Don't be discouraged, my young friend!' said an elderly man to his companion, whose youthful appearance indicated that few more than twenty years had passed over his head

'But I am discouraged, Mr. Linton. Hav'nt I been sadly disappointed in every thing I have undertaken. Success is a word, the meaning of which I shall never realize.'

'You are young, Henry,

'Quite old enough to have proved, beyond a doubt, that try as I will, I shall never rise in the world. I am doomed to struggle on, like a swimmer against a strong current. Instead of advancing at all I shall gradually be borne down the stream.'

'If you cease to struggle, you will unquestionably.'

'And will, whether I struggle or not.'

'No: that cannot be. Be vigorous, and long continued effort will gradually strengthen and mature your thoughts. Rough contact with the world, in which you are made to suffer keenly, will bring out the latent energies of your mind. Bear on manfully for a few years; falter not though every thing looks dark, and success will as certainly crown your efforts as an effect follows a cause.'

'I wish I could think so,' the young man replied, shaking his head despondingly. 'But I am fully convinced, that for me, at least, the door of success is closed.'

'How old are you, Henry?'

'Just twenty-seven.'

'And you have already failed in three business efforts.'

'Yes, and what is worse have become involved in debt.'

'But you mean to pay all you owe, if it is ever in your power'

'Can you doubt for a moment?' the young man said in a quick tone, while a flush passed over his face. 'I will pay it all, if I die in the struggle'

'And yet you were just now talking about giving up in despair.'

'True. And I do feel utterly discouraged For the last five years no man has labored more earnestly than I have Early and late have I been at my business, sometimes even till midnight, and yet all has been in vain.—Like a man in the quicksmire, every struggle to extricate myself from difficulties has had the effect to sink me deeper And now with honest intentions towards all men, I am regarded by many, as little better than a swindler.'

'You are wrong in regard to that, Henry.—Such is not the estimation in which you are held.'

'Yes, but it is. I have been told in my teeth that I was not an honest man.'

'By whom?'

'By at least one of my creditors.'

'That is the solitary instance of a man whose inordinate love of self, showing itself in a love of money, has made him forget the first principles of the law of human kindness'

'No matter what prompted the unkind remark, its effect is none the less painful, as he fully believed what he said'

'You cannot tell Henry, whether he fully believed it or not. But suppose that his words did but express his real thoughts? What then?—Does his opinion of you make you different from what you really are?

'Of course not. But it is very painful to have such things said'

'No doubt of it But conscious integrity of purpose should be sufficient to sustain any man.'

'It might in my case if I were not thoroughly crushed down My mind is like an inflamed body—the lightest touch is felt far more sensibly than would be a heavy blow if all were healthy You understand me.'

'Perfectly, and I can feel for you. But knowing that the state of mind in which you are, is, intimate, to an unhealthy one, I cannot agree with you in your conclusions.'

'But what can I do? Have I not failed in three earnest and well directed efforts to advance myself in the world?

'Try again, Henry.'

'And come out worse than before.'

'No—no—that need not follow Try in a better way.'

'Do you mean to intimate that I have not conducted my business in a proper manner?' asked the young man, in a quick voice, his cheek instantly glowing.

'I do not mean to intimate,' returned Mr. Linton calmly, 'that you committed any wilful wrong in your business. And yet, I suppose you will not yourself deny the position, that there was something wrong about it, or success would have met your earnest efforts, instead of a failure.'

'I don't know,' was the gloomy response.

'The fates, I believe, are all against me.'

'What do you mean, by the fates, Henry?'

The young man made no reply, and his monitor resumed in a still more serious tone—

'You can only mean, of course, the Divine Being, who is the author of our existence, and the controler of our destinies. The being who is essential love and wisdom, and whose acts towards us can only flow from a pure regard for the good of his creatures. And if such regard be directed by wisdom that cannot err, can any act of his towards you be evil?'

'Judge not the Lord by feeble sense,
But trust him for his grace,
Behind a frowning Providence,
He hides a smiling face.

His purposes will ripen fast,
Unfolding every hour;
The bud may have a bitter taste,
But sweet will be the flower.'

'I try to think in that way—and try often,' returned the young man in a softened tone, But it is hard, very hard to believe that a Being of infinite goodness, would so hedge up the path of any one as mine has been hedged up—would so mock with vain hopes the heart of any one as mine has been mocked.'

'Your mind is not now in a state to think calmly and rationally upon this subject, Henry, Mr. Linton said, but the time will come when you will see in this state of severe trial a dispensation of mercy. It will then be percieved, that all this was for the purpose of giving you juster views of life, and confirming you in higher ends than any you have heretofore acted upon. For the present, I will only repeat—Don't be discouraged!—Try again! Put your shoulders once more to the wheel. Depend upon it, your time will come; but not till you can bear success in a right spirit. And to have success before you are thus prepared to bear it, would be the worst injury that could befall you'

Henry Grant, the young man here introduced to the reader's notice; had, at the age of twenty-one, done the very imprudent thing of entering into business for himself. True, from the age of seventeen, he had been in the store of a merchant, who carried on a very extensive trade, and had, moreover, so thorought a knowledge of business, that the most important subordinate position in the house had been assigned to him, and his familiarity with the business in which he was engaged, deceived him. He saw that heavy profits were accruing every year. That while he was toiling on through the long months of an annual cycle for a single thousand dollars, tens of thousands were added to the coffers of his already wealthy employer.

'Why should I waste the best years of my life in making money for others,' he asked himself, the day after he attained his majority

The thought was the germ of discontent in his mind. It was nourished, and grew into a tree, whose thick leaves so overshadowed his mind, that he could not see clear sky of sober truth above, in which shone stars whose light beamed forth to guide him. He become eager for wealth that he might have selfish enjoyments Every beautiful dwelling, the reward of perhaps, years of steady industry, and now enjoyed by some opulent merchant, he envied its possessor. He sighed when a rich man's carriage rolled by him in the Street.—Nothing rare, or new, or elegant, gratified his eye, because it was not his own.

Impelled by a weak and selfish desire to be suddenly rich, a few years after he had come to the age of manhood; he drew from the hands of his guardian five thousand dollars the hard earned and carefully husbanded treasure left him by his father, and threw himself with large ideas and unwavering confidence upon the troubled sea of merchandise The story of this adventure is still to be told. In two years he was compelled to wind up his business, having lost his entire capital.

This was a painful shock. But it was of use to him, in unsealing his eyes, and giving him a truer view of life, and sober ideas from which to act. Still, he could not think, having once been in business for himself, falling back into the monotonous, dull, and humble condition of a clerk.

There was something in the act of mingling with merchants on a plane of equality, that flattered his vanity. He had thus mingled, and thus felt flattered. The thought of taking his old position, and of losing the courtesies that had been so greatful to him, was more than he could think of enduring. This feeling alone, had none other operated in his mind, would have induced him again to make an effort to get into business.

NEWSPAPERARCHIVE.COM NEWSPAPERARCHIVE.COM

A few months enabled him to so arrange his old affairs, so as to be ready to go on again. He found numbers ready to sell him goods on short credit, and this determined him once more to cast himself upon the ocean. He did so—Two more years passed on, and at their termination he found himself, alas! again in a narrow place—Much more than all his profits in that time was locked up in bad debts, remnants, and unsaleable goods. For the time, by borrowing from a few friends, he had been enabled to meet his payments, but that resource at last failed, and trouble again came upon him. But it was a worse trouble than before, and shocked his proud, sensitive feelings severely. His goods and accounts, after all had given up, were not sufficient to pay the claims against him. He was, therefore, an insolvent debtor

DAILY WHIG AND COURIER.

JOHN S. SAYWARD, Editor.

WEDNESDAY, DEC. 6, 1843.

FOR PRESIDENT,

HENRY CLAY,

OF KENTUCKY.

☞ SEE FIRST PAGE.

REMOVAL.

The Whig and Courier Office will this day be removed to the spacious room in the second story of the New Market House.

☞ That all may be thankful to-morrow, it will be well for those having abundance, to seek out to-day objects of charity, and to afford them relief. Think over the names of those you have reason to suspect are poor, and learn the fact whether they are well provided with wood and food and clothing. Perhaps you may find a family where the children are detained from school, and the parents from the sanctuary, for want of shoes or some other necessary article of clothing. Perhaps, by seeking, you may find some poor widow, with several young children depending on her for support, and it may be that the approaching festival brings with it the remembrance of the happy and abundant past with the scanty present. You may relieve her sufferings and dry up her tears by a bestowal from your abundance, which, although scarcely missed by you, may be of great service to the poor widow and her children. Think of the poor and needy to-day, and let an active charity prepare you for the enjoyment of Thanksgiving. Gentle reader, try the experiment, and learn the luxury of doing good.

☞ The editor of the Democrat appears to be wofully in the dark as to political affairs and innocently inquires what the issues, upon principle, are, in the approaching political contest.—This is one of the mortifying circumstances connected with the support of Van Buren for the presidency. We are much pressed for time for a few days now in moving our office and getting things ready for a vigorous campaign, but we shall soon be able to enlighten the editor of the Democrat upon political 'issues,' in the mean time we recommend him to study the character of Van Buren as drawn in the last Enquirer; and to the following which we copy from the National Intelligencer:—

Who shall decide when the doctors of the Locofoco party disagree about all the great questions which they assure the world it is their exclusive mission on earth to settle?

When, therefore, they are for and against a Bank, for and against a Tariff, for and against Internal Improvement, for and against a Bankrupt act, for and against Nullification, for and against Distribution, for and against the sub-Treasury, for and against the State Banks, for and against Protection, for and against Discrimination, for and against Abolition, for and against the Compromise, for and against the Ashburton treaty, for and against the Dorr rebellion, and, in a word, for and against every body and every thing that makes them a party or gives them principles, what are doubtful Whigs to do, or how arrive at those great and sure sources of uncorrupt, unmixed, absolute truth, which Locofocoism dispenses to the clear and capacious minds of its orthodox? Or how can we act, but humbly to print their seemingly contrarious discoveries, leaving it to themselves to expound and elucidate their agreement? Thus we must do with the following article, drawn from a Southern Van Buren paper:

Further from Mr. Calhoun.

"No eminent man was ever so injured and placed in a false position by the ignorance of his friends as Mr. Calhoun has been by the miserable journalists and beer-house politicians who have undertaken to recommend him to the suffrages of his countrymen at the next Presidential election. The Alabama Tribune, for example cries out in a shrill and feeble voice, restore the Compromise act! Well, suppose the compromise act had been restored on the day when the clumsy tariff act now in force was passed, what would be the condition of the country at the end of the present year? The imports during the twelve months then expiring will not have amounted to more than sixty millions, perhaps not near so much. By the compromise act no duty could exceed twenty per cent. ad valorem. Deducting, then, for articles imported free of duty, and at rates under twenty per cent. the sum of five millions, (and this is a very low estimate of the value of those importations,) we have fifty-five millions on which to levy this duty of twenty per cent., which would give us eleven millions. Deducting, again, for expenses of collection, six per cent. on the amount of duty, and we have ten millions three hundred and forty thousand dollars for the support of the Government for one year! What now is to be done? The public land may yield one million in the gross, and two-thirds of a million clear. With this pitiful sum, amounting to less than half the current expenses of the Government, how would that wise statesman in Mobile meet the demands of the navy and army, the civil and diplomatic expenses? How would he provide for the payment of the interest and principal of the public debt? Restore the compromise act! Yes; restore the compromise act, and then the next step will be to restore the taxes on slaves and other real property which were levied in the reign of old John Adams. Restore the compromise act, and shortly afterwards we shall hear of immense loans for the support of Government. We shall hear the same arguments which were uttered by Mr. Calhoun in 1816 in favor of a National Bank, that the measure is necessary and proper to facilitate the collection of revenue.—New Orleans Courier.

Jurisprudence and Legislation.

No. IV.

CHARGES AGAINST THE LEGAL PROFESSION CONSIDERED AND REFUTED — AND THE WAR CARRIED INTO AFRICA.

Thus hath the course of justice wheeled
About, to torture thee the more, being what thou art.
[SHAKSPEARE.

The subject of Jurisprudence and Legislation, which we are discussing in these numbers, very naturally leads us to a consideration of some of the prominent charges that are frequently brought against the legal profession, which we now proceed to notice.

It is very common at the present day, and among certain interested persons, to prate about the evils of litigation—to censure the Lawyers for those evils—and to endeavor by "falsehood and low cunning" to bring the laws, the ministers of justice, and our jurisprudence generally into disrepute—and thereby to excite in vulgar minds a spirit of proscription and anarchy that is exceedingly unfavorable to social order and good government. It has of late got to be the regular business, not only of the demagogue, but of those who never think of paying a debt or doing justice to others, unless compelled to by law, to go about the country, circulating the most barefaced slanders against the legal profession.

If an attorney does not instantly pounce upon a debtor, and compel payment, reckless of all circumstances of reason, prudence and justice, why he is "negligent," and unworthy to be entrusted with business. If he is vigilant and enforces payment after reasonable indulgence, then he is unmerciful and inhuman—bent upon all the cost and trouble he can possibly make. If he takes a prime note on short time by which he secures the debt and saves cost sto both parties, why then he does that from "selfish motives and with a design of making another bill of costs"! But there are still other and graver charges brought against the profession. It is said that Lawyers are more selfish and unscrupulous than other men—that too many of them get into our Legislatures, and exercise a pernicious influence in the enactment of laws which tend to litigation, and the advancement of their own selfish interests, reckless of consequences to the community. Also that in the practice of their profession these selfish and corrupt propensities, induce them to excite unnecessary litigation, and to make the expenses thereof much greater than they should be. And in support of these unfounded and impudent charges, particular cases of alleged injustice and wrong on the part of certain attornies, are cited, and also the pretended prosperity and sudden wealth of all Lawyers.

Experience and observation teach us that probably more than three fourths of the charges made against attornies are sheer fabrications, originiating in error, envy or malice As illustrative of this fact we will state one out of several cases which have come under our own immediate observation. About the first of November, 1841, a gentlemen left a lot of demands in an attorney's office for collection, among which was one of $5,13, against a poor man residing some six miles distant, in the out skirts of the town. The Debtor was possessed of a single horse team, with which he frequently hauled wood and bark into the Village—but was not supposed to have the legal ownership of any attachable property.

During the twenty-one months which elapsed between the above date and the 31st day of July 1843, the Attorney wrote two letters to the debtor—spoke to him some six or eight times—offered to take Wood, Bark, Produce, or any thing else which the debtor could most conveniently turn out—and received from said debtor, some seven or eight acknowledgments of the justice of the debt, and as many express promises that it should positively be paid in a short time. Nothing being done, at the last date above mentioned, the Attorney made a writ, and contrary to the expectations of himself and client, succeeded in collecting the debt. But when the officer served the writ, the debtor told him that the Attorney was a "Cold blooded, black hearted wretch, destitute of all feeling for the poor!!!" Now the man who was guilty of these numerous falsehoods, to which he added the above infamous slander against the Attorney who had indulged, urged and entreated him to do something for nearly two years, was a professor of the Christian Religion, and held himself out to the world as a public teacher of Righteousness! We know of scores of instances equal in justice.

That there are in the legal profession some selfish, mean, and corrupt individuals, who would be discreditable to any profession or calling, and whose professional practice deserves loud and severe reprehension, no one can doubt; nor is there any person in the community who more heartily despises the character and conduct of such persons than the respectable portion of their own profession. But does it follow from these few isolated cases, that the Lawyers, as a body, are really more selfish and unscrupulous than other men? Let us look candidly at this matter.

Is there any profession, sect or party without its unworthy members? If we go into the lumbering swamp or saw mill, shall we find no wrongful procuring of logs, timber, or boards?—If to the mechanic's shop, shall we there find no unfaithfulness towards the employer?—no covering up of knots, rents, &c., with paint or other bedaubing substance? If to the merchants store, shall we find no hiding of defects, no exaggeration of cost, no fraudulent weight or measure?—If we go to the home of the sober, honest-looking farmer, with his broad-brimmed beaver—yes, if we go among "the honest yeomanry," whom demagogues and fools are ever disposed to flatter, at the expense of the learned professions—yes, if we go amongst this very respectable class of men, shall we find no rancid butter, gargetty cow, broken backed horse or ruined ox, undergoing the necessary process to deceive some unwary purchaser, at the distant village?

If we go into the medical profession, how shall we find it there? Are there none in that pursuit who practice guile and quackery? no reckless, ignorant pretenders, increasing the evils of disease, and trifling with the health and lives of their patients? Or if we turn to the department of Theology, shall we there find no selfish, undevout occupant of the sacred desk? No one who cares more for the "loaves and fishes," than he does about the souls of his parishioners? No presumptous wretch, with the praises of God upon his tongue, while yet in secret he is a slave to his animal lusts and passions? We would to God that these interrogatories could be answered in the negative, but sad experience teaches us that all have "gone out of the way"—that "tho' man was made upright, he has sought out many inventions"—and that "Even the church, God's lowly temple, sees the villain there,

With eye upturned, and aspect false as fair—
E'en at the Altar's very horns he stands,
And breaks and blesses with polluted hands."

Let then that profession, calling, or class of men, "that is without sin, cast the first stone" at the legal profession. What a scampering there ought to be among you, gentlemen, until "the woman be left alone," and hear from the lips of her Divine Master, "where are those thy accusers—hath no man condemned thee?" and "neither do I condemn thee, go, sin no more."

But further as to these complaints against the legal profession. And here we plead the general issue, to the slanderous indictment, by saying that there is not one particle of truth in the whole impudent allegation. We deny that there is usually in our Legislature a greater proportion of lawyers, than their talents, education, general intelligence, and virtue entitle them to, or than the best interests of the State absolutely require. Without stopping to be very precise in numbers, it may be remarked that there are in this State some ten great, distinct classes of interests to be represented in our State Legislature, the most momentous of which is by far that of the Judiciary. There is usually in our Legislature, we believe, about one lawyer to every ten members from the other pursuits and interests. And we put the question to every candid, experienced mind, whether ten, or even five ordinary men, most of whom will be uneducated and inexperienced, do not absolutely need the aid of at least one legal gentleman, in the difficult and importannt business of enacting laws for half a million of people? And whether without that proportion of legal gentlemen in the Legislature, there would not probably be a vast amount of unwise and pernicious legislation?

An able and eloquent writer in an old No. of the "Christian Spectator," very pertinently remarks,—"We know that multitudes of men in every age are enemies to education. We know that enemies to the learned professions start up every where, even in a soil, which for the purity of its institutions, owes more to them than to all other influences combined. Were we set for the defence of education in a community against such opposers, we would ask what would be the complexion of the laws, were the narrow views and fixed prejudices of uneducated men all that made up the legislative councils? For what else could we look, but narrow policy and contracted schemes, and the surrender of the great interests of the State to the dominion of selfishness and prejudice." LEONIDAS.

Ellsworth, Me., Nov., 1843.

Sad Accident.

Jason Crowell, an enterprising young man, on Friday last, while engaged in a saw mill, at Weston's Mills, Levant, was so unfortunate as to have his right wrist brought in contact with the mill saw while in motion, by which it was so shockingly lacerated as to require amputation; which operation was performed by Dr. Case, of Levant, the patient manifesting unusual fortitude under his severe sufferings. It is hoped that the benevolent will not be unmindful of the case of one who is so deserving of their commiseration and assistance, and who was entirely dependant on his labor for support, but will aid him under his severe calamity.

☞ The Warren school house in Charlestown, Mass., was entirely consumed by fire on Sunday last. There had been a vacation of a week, and it is supposed that this was the work of incendiaries.

On Sunday morning there was a fire in Waltham, Mass. The Post Office, a dry goods store and a jeweller's shop in the same building, and also two other buildings, with considerable property were consumed by fire. Damage, $12,000. A barn, with four horses and a large quantity of hay and grain were consumed by fire in Roxbury, on Sunday morning.

☞ Supplies are going off pretty rapidly to the lumbermen in the woods. The increased price of stumpage for good permits, the limited amount of lumber sold by the State, and the low price of lumber, have reduced lumbering the present season about one half.

☞ We learn that Col. Joshua Carpenter, of Lincoln, has recently been appointed Agent for the several tribes of Indians on the Osage River, and that he will take up his residence in Missouri in order to discharge the duties of his new office.

☞ The Charter Oak sails from Frankfort on Friday, on her last trip for the season The Expresses of Gilman & Co., and Jerome, will then, as we understand, take the land tacks.

☞ Professor Shepherd delivered a very interesting lecture before the Lyceum last evening. There was a full house and all were delighted as is always the case when Professor Shepherd speaks.

☞ Seven men, said to be part of a gang of robbers have been executed at Havana—others are to be executed and some soldiers of the army have been severely dealt with. Justice is sanguinary in Havana.

☞ We understand says the National Intelligencer, that Mr. Fox, the British Minister, is about to retire from this mission, to be succeeded by Mr Packenham, late British Minister to Mexico.

☞ W. W. Snowden publisher of the Ladies Companion has been sued for a violation of the copy right of a piece of music. Damage $625.

☞ The Lincoln Republican of Thursday last, states that the Governor's health is still failing, and it is feared he will not be able to attend the sitting of the Council on the 13th.

THE PILES AND ALL SORES.

HAY'S LINIMENT is known now to thousands, as a most extraordinary remedy for these afflictions It is impossible to tell in a newspaper, in such a manner, as to obtain full credence, the effects and benefits of this article so general is the practice of advertisers of extolling articles of no merit Such personal reference will be given, as to bring conviction to the minds of the most unbelieving Will sufferers only ask among their friends, if they have not heard or known its effects, and if they do not hear it more warmly praised than any other salve, let them not get it — All fancy or exageration is positively excluded from the statements, and it is determined to say nothing of its merits, but what could be fully proved by a host of witnesses, in any court of justice. Will you look at the thing and the proofs where it may be had? at G W LADD'S A P GUILD'S, and A. YOUNG JR & CO, formerly Holden's. 3twd and w6m nov 9

REDUCTION FOURFOLD IN PRICES—OR NOTHING

AN article that every family must consider indispensable, when they know its power and value and which has heretofore been sold too high to bring it to all classes, has now been reduced fourfold in price, with a view that rich and poor high and low, and in fact every human being may enjoy its comforts, and all who get it shall have the price returned to them if they are not delighted with its use We assert, without the possibility of contradiction, that all burns and scalds every external sore, old or fresh, and all external pains and aches, no matter where, shall be reduced to comfort by it in five minutes—saving life, limb or scar No burn can be fatal if this is applied, unless the vitals are destroyed by the accident It is truly magical, to appearance, in its effects Enquire for "Connel's Magical Pain Extractor" at Comstock & Co's 21 Cortland street Price 25 cents or four times as much for 50 cents, and ten times as much for $1

Hair Tonic.

NO EXCUSE FOR A BALD HEAD Since the important discovery of Dr JAYNE'S HAIR TONIC every one may, if they choose, preserve their hair from falling off, or if already bald, may, with certainty, have their hair restored by the faithful and persevering application of this celebrated HAIR TONIC

Please to read without prejudice the following communication, which, in addition to hundreds of others equally respectable, should remove the doubts of every reasonable person of the uniform and singular efficacy of JAYNE'S HAIR TONIC

HAMILTON, Feb 15, 1840

Dr D Jayne- Dear Sir: I cannot say my hair is restored but I can say that it appears to be in as rapid a process of restoration as could reasonably be expected I had not finished the first bottle, before a decided change was manifest over the bald part of the head, to which it was applied A new growth of fine glossy hair, much like that of an infant, appeared, and has continued to increase, and I have had it cut two or three times I have recently commenced upon the third bottle, but have been a good deal irregular in the use of the Tonic from the first, and from this cause I apprehend the effect is at present less than it otherwise would have been

I began the use of the Tonic with little or no faith that it would ever be successful on my head, though I had entire confidence in your statements of what it had done for others, and I was as much surprised as delighted when I saw the effect You recollect the appearance of my head when in your office I assure you the hair has been nearly, if not quite, an inch long at the times I have had it cut, on those parts which were nearly destitute of any when you saw me It was, however, very fine, though quite thick I am flushed with sanguine hopes of final success in the diligent use of your Tonic, which, amidst all the humbugs which have been advertised in the papers, I am constrained to believe is what it claims to be and that it will make the hair grow, and no mistake at least on some heads.

NEW YORK, August 3, 1842

"Messrs Sands—Gentlemen Under a feeling sense of gratitude inherent to us all when suddenly relieved from suffering and disease, I now, as an act of justice due to you and with a view of relieving the afflicted, make known to the world the inestimable benefit I have received from the use of your Sarsaparilla In the year 1832 I sailed from England in a vessel bound for Quebec, and while on the passage first discovered the disease which after proved to be a sore affliction, and truly I can say, from the crown of my head to the sole of my foot there was no soundness in me' From the time first mentioned down until the present, a period of more than ten years, I have suffered all that human nature was capable of bearing I have been under the care of the most distinguished physicians both in this country and in England, visited Bath Cheltenham, Bristol and Gloucester, tried various specifics among others a large quantity of Swaim's Panacea used sulphur baths &c As a last resort I was induced to wrap myself in a tar ointment, keep myself secluded shunned by all, myself also shunning I was induced to believe my case a hopeless one

In August last, by the advice of friends, I went to the New York City Hospital but was there told that my case was incurable The disease now enveloped my whole body rendering me almost helpless, the skin thickened and cracked, and blood and matter ran, and life itself became almost a burden A few weeks since I was induced to use your Sarsaparilla by hearing it so highly recommended having spent nearly $3,000 without obtaining but little relief After using it a short time, I found myself better, and now, by using six or eight bottles, costing me less than ten dollars I am well Yes, I certify and declare to the world, that after spending near $3,000 in traveling and doctoring and suffering more than can be told, I was perfectly cured by using your invaluable preparation of Sarsaparilla, and I now recommend it to all similarly afflicted Those wishing to know further particulars will find me at my residence, No 27 Warren street, New York, where I shall be happy to communicate any thing in relation to the above cure
